

YOUNG STARS RISK THEI

From plump pouts to chiselled chins, these 20-something celebs are playing a dangerous

KYLIE JENNER, 19

'Kylie risks having a permanent trout pout'

As a half-sister to the surgery-enhanced Kardashians, it's hardly surprising that Kylie Jenner has embraced a bit of nip and tuck. But the reality star sparked controversy in 2015 after admitting to having lip fillers at just 17, though she later admitted she went too far. Top surgeon Mark Ho-Asjoe fears Kylie could end up permanently damaging her lips if she continues injecting filler. He says: "Kylie's lower lip is much too big and looks unnatural. She runs the risk of getting a permanent trout pout." Last week Kylie was pictured with a noticeably larger bum - something Mark believes could be the result of fat transfers and injections.

BELLA HADID, 20

'By 30, Bella will have no shape to her lips'

She shot to fame as one of the world's most in-demand models, alongside big sister Gigi, but Bella Hadid isn't comfortable taking pictures of herself, admitting: "I still feel awkward taking a selfie sometimes." Bella's never admitted to surgery, but there is speculation that she has cosmetically enhanced her looks. Mark says: "I believe Bella's had lip fillers, rhinoplasty to slim the bridge of the nose and Botox to give her a more wide-eyed look. If Bella continues to mess with her lips, there's a risk that by 30 they'll have no shape. They could become sausage-like, without movement."

AMY CHILDS:

'I was far too young to have surgery'

Former TOWIE star Amy Childs is no stranger to having work done after two boob jobs, Botox and lip fillers. She recently told Closer she'd had a surgery "addiction," adding: "I was far too young when I started having surgery. If I could talk to my 18-year-old self today I'd 100 per cent tell her never to go under the knife."

Speaking about her regrets over having lip fillers in 2015, Amy, 26, who's expecting her first child later this year, says: "I literally went overboard with my lips and it was just a disaster. If I could turn back time I'd never have done it."
