Right now is a 65-Year-old woman on the operating table at Aarhus University hospital. She's having surgery for breast cancer. What's so special about this surgery is that the well-known British plastic surgeon mark ho-Asjoe (left in picture) performs reenactment of chest in connection with the operation. In addition, the operation will be broadcast live to a room full of brystkræfteksperter, which is currently being assembled for a workshop at Aarhus University hospital to get smarter on how they can be even better to treat breast cancer.
